

THE BIG BLOCKADE

1ST OCTOBER 2007

BRIEFING PACK

On 1st October 2006 the first in a new series of nonviolent blockades of the Trident nuclear weapons base at Faslane took place. This was the start of Faslane 365, the year-long blockade of the home of Britain's WMDs. Over the last year many thousands of people, from all walks of life, have come to Faslane to peacefully put themselves in the way of the nuclear war machine. At the time of writing nearly 1000 people have been arrested (although only 43 prosecuted — see page 7). On 1st October 2007, we will gather for a Big Blockade of Faslane, to celebrate this year of resistance to nuclear insanity and to renew our commitment to seeing our vision of a nuclear free Scotland — and a nuclear free world — become reality.

Many of the autonomous groups who have made up Faslane 365 will be coming together for this action. Also, we expect quite a number of people who aren't in a group to come along. This Briefing Pack is aimed primarily at those individuals, although groups who have already taken part in Faslane 365 should still read it, especially the sections on Accommodation (page 4) and Support Roles (page 9), the latter since there will be some differences in the nature and level of support provided centrally and what groups are expected to provide themselves.

There will be music at the gates and the Jeely Peace Café will provide their lovely snacks and hot drinks using recipes developed especially to keep the blockade energised!

Over the last year the situation has moved on somewhat. In March, the UK Government won the initial vote in Parliament on Trident Replacement. However, the scale of the opposition (and the parliamentary rebellion) gives us something to build on. This is only the start of the replacement process — we can still stop it if we keep the pressure up. Another significant change to the political climate came in May with the election of a new Scottish Government on a platform including an anti-Trident commitment. Indeed, members of the executive are supporters of Faslane 365. This is an unprecedented situation — to have a country which is part of a Nuclear Weapon State (and which hosts all that state's nuclear weapons) but whose population, and now also whose government, is strongly opposed to those weapons. We have a unique opportunity to take an international lead in nuclear disarmament but we must keep up the people pressure.

The Plan

The plan is to start the blockade at 7am, in time for morning shift change. Coaches will leave Edinburgh at 04:30 and Glasgow at 05:30 to arrive in time for this. Some groups may have their own plans, which could involve arriving later in the day (although, depending on how the waiting base traffic is managed, that could be much later). We don't yet know what the policing response to this action will be. Throughout Faslane 365 their approach has been to try and prevent blockades and to clear them as quickly as possible. However, at the last "Big Blockade" (during the 2005 G8 week, so a very different context) the police left everyone in the road all day without any attempt to remove people. We are therefore asking people to prepare for both scenarios, and to consider what they would need to stay on into the evening and night if possible.

Affinity Groups

We are calling for everyone to come in self-sufficient affinity groups that have already made some plans for the blockade and discussed what to do at the gates. Affinity groups make it easier to look after everyone's welfare and safety and keep track of arrests for legal support. An affinity group is a group of about 6-18 people who support each other during an action. As well as including people prepared to risk being arrested there are also important support roles that require some people in each affinity group who are choosing not to be arrested.

Many of these affinity groups will be based around the Faslane 365 Blockading Groups who have already taken action at Faslane over the last year. New affinity groups are welcome. People who don't have an affinity group can come to Glasgow on Sunday Sept 30th, join an action workshop and find a group to work with.

Faslane 365 Nonviolence Guidelines

We are committed to always acting in a way that causes no harm to ourselves or others. We ask that everyone taking part in Faslane 365 respect and follow these guidelines:

- Our attitude will be one of sincerity and respect towards the people we encounter.
- We will not engage in physical violence or verbal abuse toward any individual.
- We will carry no weapons.
- We will not bring or use alcohol or drugs other than for medical purposes.
- We will clear the blockade to allow emergency vehicles in or out of the base and then resume the blockade afterwards.

Action Workshops

There will be a number of action workshops happening at the various venues on Sunday Sept 30th aimed at people who aren't yet in a group or haven't done this kind of thing before. We will cover stuff such as the nonviolence guidelines, passive resistance, fashion tips and other practicalities, basic blockading techniques, the arrest process and affinity group formation.

The workshop will be about 2 hours long, and at the end of it you will hopefully feel part of a group who will know roughly what they want to do, will look out for each other and will have fun during the blockade.

Workshop Timetable Sunday Sept 30th:

- 3pm – 5pm at Anderston Kelvingrove
- 5:30pm – 7:30pm at Anderston Kelvingrove
- 5pm – 7pm at all other venues

Please note that the workshops will be starting promptly at the times indicated.

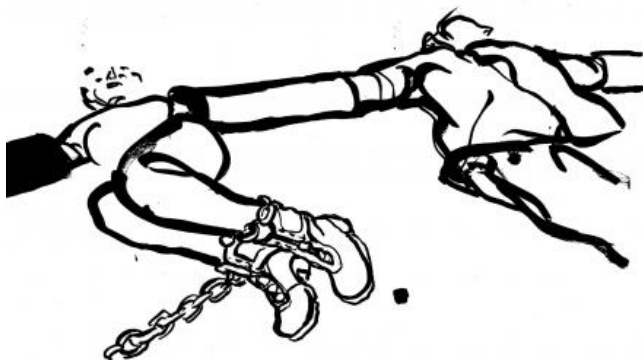

If you have a chance please check out the website or Resource Pack (downloadable from the website or available by post) in order to find out more about what to bring and how to prepare for the action so that you will be as comfortable as possible during the blockade.

Briefing Meeting

There will be a briefing / info sharing meeting in the Glasgow venues at 8pm on the Sunday night. This will cover any last minute practicalities and planning for the action. If you live near Glasgow and are planning on simply getting on one of our buses on the Monday morning, please try to get along to Anderston Kelvingrove (see page 4) for this meeting. (You will also be very welcome at the workshops on the Sunday afternoon — see above.)

Blockading Techniques

[This is not meant to be a definitive guide, for more info see the F365 Resource Pack or come along to a workshop.] In the past people have blockaded by standing, sitting or lying across the road with their arms linked. Some people go limp when arrested making it harder for the police to move them off the road. So that the blockade is more effective, affinity groups have chained themselves together or to objects. Although, of course, the main thing is that people do blockade, rather than how they do it — no-one should feel pressured to do something they're not comfortable with and some people will simply sit in the road until arrested then walk to the van.

To make it more difficult for the police to separate them some people join their hands through metal, plastic or cardboard tubes and lock their hands together using karabiners (climbing clips) attached to chains or rope around their wrists. The tubes have to be long enough to prevent the police sliding them along people's arms to reveal the chain or rope. Care has to be taken not to let the police suspect you plan to use tubes as in the past they have arrested people for having lock-on tubes or chains around their wrists. Tubes can be disguised as part of fancy-dress costume, as part of street theatre props, as dummy missiles or in old rucksacks — use your imagination! Remember that Strathclyde police have had a lot of experience this year in spotting lock-ons...

During Faslane 365 there have also been a lot of other imaginative blockading techniques appearing. Superglue has been popular — either for gluing hands together in a lock-on tube or gluing your own hands together after linking arms with your neighbour who then does the same. People have covered themselves with paint to put the police off dealing with them. (This could cause problems in the middle of a crowded blockade!)

We are hoping to continue all day and beyond — depending on the police response — and in any case if the police begin arresting people at 7am it can take many hours to clear the road. So, however you choose to blockade, think about your comfort. Have warm, waterproof clothes and some padding to lie on. Have some snacks handy and, while not getting dehydrated, try to avoid a full bladder!

Registration

We ask everyone coming to this action to register with the Legal Support Team — even if you're definitely not risking arrest please register, just in case. Make sure you also pick up a Bust Card at the same time. Registration forms will be available at the Glasgow venues and on our buses from Glasgow and Edinburgh and, for individuals who turn up at Faslane, from the registration table at North gate. If you are coming straight to Faslane with a group, please download the form (and accompanying FAQ) and Bust Card from www.faslane365.org/1oct/legal and make sure everyone fills one in and that someone collects them and hands them in either at the registration table at North Gate or to the legal support co-ordinator at another gate.

Accommodation

We will be providing “crash pad” style accommodation for the nights of Sunday 30th September and Monday 1st October. This will be in church halls, or similar, in Glasgow. Please book in advance if possible so we have an idea of how many people are coming (info@faslane365.org / 0845 45 88 365). You will need to bring your own sleeping bag and mat, etc. Hot vegan food will be available on both days in the evening and there will be sandwich and breakfast making facilities, all on a donation basis. Please note that the Faslane 365 Nonviolence Guidelines apply in the venues as well. If you need to contact the venues, you can call 07765 328439 from Sunday 10am onwards only.

The venues will be open from 2pm on Sunday 30th September. There will be some action workshops and planning opportunities on Sunday afternoon (see page 2) and a briefing on the Sunday evening. There will be spaces to leave bags during the day on the Monday — please label your bag clearly.

The reception / info point is at Anderston Kelvingrove Church so go there initially (from here you might be directed on to another venue). (If you're bringing a whole bus load up please contact us in advance and we may send you straight to one of the other venues.)

Alternatively, you may wish to make your own arrangements and book a B&B or youth hostel. There are hostels in Glasgow and also a youth hostel at Loch Lomond (which is only 15 minutes drive from Faslane — but you will need your own transport).

Getting to the Info / Reception Point

Anderston Kelvingrove Church is in the west end of Glasgow city centre. The postcode is G3 8DS. It has a large, green, pyramid shaped roof.

By Public Transport

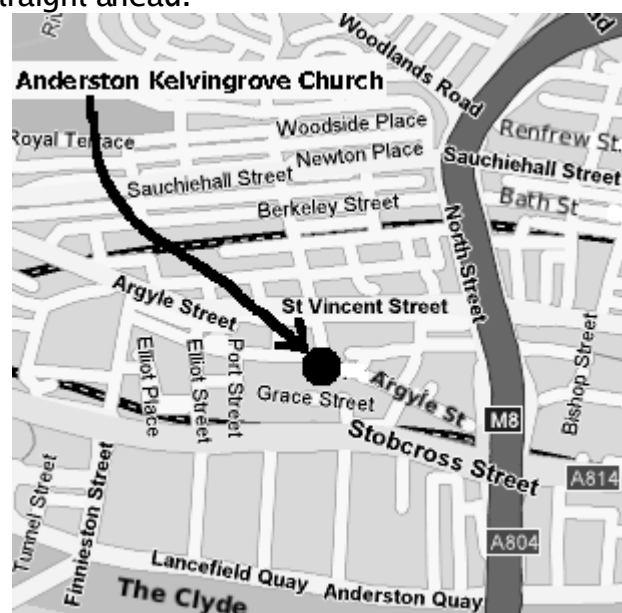

The nearest train stations are Anderston (on the lower level line from Central) or Charing Cross (on the lower level line from Queen St).

From Anderston Station: When you come out of the station there are steps up to a footbridge straight ahead of you. Walk past the steps and turn left. Cross the road at the traffic lights then walk straight ahead for about three minutes. The church is on the left.

From Glasgow Central Station: Take the exit from the station signposted as for Argyle St (near the low level trains). Turn right (west) along Argyle St. Walk for about 10-15 minutes. You will come to Anderston Station (see above).

From Glasgow Queen St Station: Come out of the front of Queen St station and turn right along West George St. At the first crossroads turn left down Buchanan St then take the first right along St Vincent St. Walk along St Vincent St for about 15 minutes or so, until it crosses the motorway. At the next big crossroads turn left onto Elderslie Street. At the end of the street (only two minutes walk) is a mini-roundabout. The church is straight ahead.

From Buchanan Bus Station: Turn left out of the entrance to the bus station then right along Killermont St. At the crossroads turn left down West Nile St. Walk down West Nile St for about 2-3 minutes until you get to a crossroads with St Vincent St. Turn right and walk along St Vincent St for about 15 minutes or so, until it crosses the motorway. At the next big crossroads turn left onto Elderslie Street. At the end of the street (only two minutes walk) is a mini-roundabout. The church is straight ahead.

By Road

Come in to Glasgow on the M8 heading west. At Junction 18 exit on the right (i.e. from the fast lane!) onto the A804. Go along the A804 for about 600 yards. Turn right at St Vincent St then left at Elderslie St. At the mini roundabout turn left and you're there.

Getting to Faslane

On Our Buses

We are arranging coaches from Glasgow and Edinburgh. Please book in advance if possible.

From Glasgow

Buses leave Glasgow at 05:30 am. They will leave from our accommodation venues, from George Square and from Kelvinbridge. The cost is £6 return. Please book via info@faslane365.org / 0845 45 88 365.

From Edinburgh

Buses leave Edinburgh at 04:30 am (Waterloo Place) and 05:00 am (Haymarket). The cost is £10 return. Please book via the Edinburgh Peace & Justice Centre on contact@pjrc-edinburgh.org.uk or 0131 229 0993.

By Road

Take M8 through Glasgow city centre and leave at Junction 17 (signposted for Dumbarton). At traffic lights turn right. Follow the Great Western Road (A82) out of Glasgow. Approaching Dumbarton take left turn signposted for Helensburgh (A814). Continue through Dumbarton centre then on to Helensburgh following signposts. Stay on the A814 through Rhu and on to Faslane, 5 miles north of Helensburgh.

If you are bringing a coach straight to Faslane please get in touch to get details of drop-off and parking arrangements.

If you plan to come by car please note there are parking restrictions around the base. There is limited parking near the North Gate — if you have access needs and are coming by car please contact us ASAP. Otherwise there is some parking in Garelochhead or you could park in Helensburgh and get a bus out (although, depending on how it's policed, there could be delays after 7am).

By Public Transport

Trains leave from Queen Street Lower to Helensburgh Central at 05:57 and 06:40 am arriving at 06:59 and 07:23. Alternatively the West Highland Line train leaves Glasgow Queen Street at 05:30 and 0821 am, arriving at Garelochhead station at 0640 and 0915. The walk from Garelochhead station to the North Gate of Faslane takes roughly 25 minutes. From station walk down the hill to the main road, (the A814) turn left and follow the road south out of Garelochhead and past the fuel depot.

Legal Briefing for Blockading

[A number of additional briefings (for Young People, Internationals and Drivers) and more detailed arrest process are available on www.faslane365.org/legal or at the Glasgow venues on the Sunday.]

In writing this briefing we are building on many years of experience of blockading Faslane and on the experience of Faslane 365 so far. Many hundreds of people have been arrested and many more have taken part without being arrested and for most it has been a positive, even liberating, experience.

While the charges and police behaviour over the years have been relatively predictable, this project was intended to be an escalation of the effectiveness of these blockades. The police tactics did change slightly for Faslane 365, with most people being held overnight only to be released with the charges dropped. The claimed justification for this was the risk of re-offending if people were released that day due to the ongoing nature of the project. Since this is the end of Faslane 365 we don't know if people will be released that evening or held overnight.

Legal Support

Unlike the autonomous blockades throughout the year we are providing a slightly more centralised legal support structure. It will be essentially the same structure, except that we will be providing the Trackers role centrally. If you are bringing a group straight to the gates then please download the Bust Card from www.faslane365.org/1oct/legal and make sure everyone has one (see also registration info on page 3). We will have Legal Observers at the gates but affinity groups with self-contained plans should have their own.

Possible Charges

Remember when reading this that some of what we cover here is worst-case scenarios. It is quite possible that no-one will face anything more serious than Breach of the Peace or Resisting Arrest.

Blockading

If you go onto the road at the entrance to the base it is likely that at some stage the police will tell you to move. If you refuse then you may be arrested. Ironically, given the reason why we're doing it, the usual charge is "Breach of the Peace"! Sometimes the police issue a warning to a whole group of people before moving in to arrest individuals. Our experience is that if you stay on the pavement it is unlikely that you will be arrested.

Breach of the Peace is a common-law offence (which means it's defined by previous court judgments rather than by Act of Parliament). While the offence goes back centuries the leading judgments (High Court rulings which define what BoP means) are fairly recent and tend to involve anti-nuclear protesters who blockaded Faslane! In theory, BoP requires "conduct severe enough to cause alarm to ordinary people and threaten serious disturbance to the community. It should be conduct that is genuinely alarming and disturbing, in its context, to any reasonable person ... it is clear that something substantially greater than mere irritation is involved". In practice our court does usually reckon that this includes peacefully sitting in the road at Faslane and you are likely to be convicted.

You may not be prosecuted — the courts have a finite capacity (and see also below). Some people may be offered Fixed Penalty Notices, which are a bit like a speeding fine in that if you pay (they're usually £50) you don't get a criminal record. Some will hear nothing at all. Some may be prosecuted. This can be either in the District Court or in the Sheriff Court (the Procurator Fiscal gets to choose) and usually results in a fine of £50-£100 if you plead guilty or £100-£200 if you plead not guilty.

Resisting Arrest / Obstructing an Officer in the Course of Their Duty

If you are locked-on, fail to move when told to, or after arrest, then they may add one of these charges. This may (especially the resisting arrest) be dropped before the case gets to court but it may be prosecuted. Like BoP, these charges cover a huge range of situations but, given the nonviolent and accountable nature of these actions, this would be very much towards the trivial end of the spectrum and would usually result in a small fine.

Other Offences

Faslane is a Designated Area under section 129 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (as amended by the Terrorism Act 2006). This means that it's an offence to be inside the fenceline without lawful authority (and potentially a serious one — the maximum penalty is a year in prison). However, this only applies if you go inside the fenceline. As long as you stay outside the fence, even if you are on MoD land and/or blockading the gates, then you cannot be charged with this. For more information on this power see the Trident Ploughshares briefing.

[www.tridentploughshares.org/article1405]

It is also possible that they may decide to use section 14 of the Public Order Act (which allows them to put conditions on assemblies in certain situations). Depending on how it's done there are a number of ways to challenge this. The likely sentence, if convicted, would again be a smallish fine. It could make life more difficult for supporters who wish to be present but not to risk arrest — but if they do impose a s14 they should provide a space in which we are allowed to be. If there were a total ban on assembly imposed then supporters would become potentially arrestable. We will be able to help advise what is likely to be do-able without risking arrest once the terms of the exact order are known. Remember also that the rights to Freedom of Assembly and Freedom of Expression are enshrined in the European Convention on Human Rights and into Scots law via the Scotland Act and Human Rights Act. We may well be able to challenge these orders if they become too restrictive.

Prosecutions So Far

As of the end of August 2007, there have been nearly 1000 arrests at Faslane on Faslane 365 blockades. Only 43 have been prosecuted. The rest were either given letters (or promised that letters would arrive for them in the post) from the Procurator Fiscal informing them that although there was enough evidence to prosecute them they were not going to this time — but if they did it again then they might be prosecuted next time. Some of those who had been arrested twice or three times for blockading received the same letter although the practice appears to be to start prosecuting on your third arrest (although 12 of the 38 were first time arrestees — all from the same group in February, we're not sure why). Once you have got this letter they can't prosecute you. There has been only one fixed penalty notice given to one of the arrestees. Of course, this is the PF's decision and he could change policy at any time.

On the Day

Bust Cards

Make sure you have the phone number of the legal support team and of a solicitor. This will be provided on a Bust Card (get one when you register or at the gates). It is a good idea to write them numbers on your arm as well.

What Happens If I'm Arrested?

The first thing once you're under arrest is that you should be told that you are under arrest! After that, you will be asked to walk with two cops. If you refuse you will be carried (usually by four cops) either to a van or to the processing centre (in the oil depot by the cemetery car park). Once there you will be asked for your details, they might conduct a very basic search and a 'Polaroid' type photo will be taken of you with your two arresting officers. The only questions you have to answer are name and address. You will have the charge read to you and will be asked if you understand it and if you want to make a reply to it.

You will then be put into a van and taken to a police office. Once there you will be asked the same questions again and you will be searched (should only be a "pat-down" search). Your belongings will be taken off you (if you have a paperback book and ask to keep it they usually let you) and you will be put in a cell. You have the right to have someone informed — please ask them to inform the Legal Support number on the Bust Card. If you want a solicitor you can ask for that as well (although most people will not need to see one unless they are actually taken to court). Tell the police if you have any dietary or medical requirements.

You may be taken out at some point to have a photograph, your fingerprints and possibly a DNA sample taken (they are allowed to do all three). You may be interviewed but it's unlikely — the safest thing is always to just say “no comment”. You will be fed and can ask for blankets and water. Eventually, you will be released.

What do I do when I get released?

If the police can confirm your details and they are satisfied that the action is over you should be given all your property back and released.

With previous Big Blockades, this was later that evening but so far in Faslane 365 most people have been released early afternoon the day following their arrest. The release process can take a long time if there are a lot of people in custody so be prepared for a long wait. We will try to arrange lifts to pick you up. Please ring Legal Support (number on the bust card) when you're out to see if transport is already en route and to let us know you're out.

What Happens if I am Held for Court?

If you are charged with a serious offence or your details don't check out or you are already on bail or there is a warrant for your arrest then you may be held and taken to court the next morning. [Note that people have often been told on the day of their arrest that they are being held for court then released with warning letters (and the charges dropped) the following day.] You can ask a solicitor to represent you or just to give you advice. You will probably be released on standard bail conditions — this means that if you are arrested again whilst on bail they can add an extra charge. Bail does not usually require the payment of money sureties in Scotland. They may want to add extra conditions — such as not to go within a certain distance of Faslane — but should give you the opportunity to argue against them if you want to. Unless you have a history of breaking bail you should get bail for these sorts of charges.

When I am Released from the Police Station will I Hear Any More About It?

If you are released with a letter from the PF saying that he thinks you're guilty as sin, but that he isn't going to prosecute you on this occasion then that's the end of it. The police sometimes release people on an undertaking to come back to court on a specified day within the next few days or weeks. They will ask you to sign this and give you a copy. If you sign then it's an extra offence not to turn up on the day in question (note: you don't have to sign if you don't want to — if you don't they still have to either release you or take you to court on the day after the initial arrest). They can also give you a citation on release, which is a letter saying you have to come to court but which also have the complaint, info about legal aid and a form allowing you to plead by post. If you are released without any paperwork (probably the most likely option given the numbers involved on this occasion) then you may receive a citation (to come to court) or a fixed penalty fine in the post up to a year later.

If you do get prosecuted, there is further resources and a detailed briefing covering the process available on www.faslane365.org/legal. Please let the Legal Working Group know on legalworkinggroup@faslane365.org or 07768 312678.

Support Roles

Legal Support

Make sure that everyone in your group has filled in a legal support form and has a Bust Card — including those that are not planning to risk arrest. These will be available at the Glasgow venues, on the buses and at the gates of Faslane. If you are coming directly to the base you can download them from the website at www.faslane365.org/1oct/legal or contact us and we will e-mail or post you a form to copy. Please hand the completed forms in to the registration tables at Glasgow venues or Faslane.

We will co-ordinate Legal Support centrally. We will collect all the legal support forms and track people who have been arrested including confirming addresses to the police. We will find out which police stations people are being held in, when they are due to be released and will co-ordinate lifts to get them back to a Anderston Kelvingrove Church in Glasgow (see page. 4).

Each affinity group should have their own legal observers whose main role is getting the names of people being arrested. They can also note down:

- Is a warning given? Who by? At what time?
- Are people being cut out of lock-ons? Who by? How long does it take? Are the police being careful?
- Is there traffic actually present which is being stopped? Is it just base traffic or is there local traffic also held up? Can through traffic get past?

When the arrests from your group have finished give a list of the names to the Legal support co-ordinator (wearing a tabard) at your gate. (or if for some reason this is not possible phone them in yourself)

The legal support office will track people and during the evening there will be information available at Anderston Kelvingrove about which police stations people are being held at.

We will co-ordinate minibuses to pick people up from police stations and bring them to Anderston Kelvingrove. If you are coming up by minibus please consider having an extra driver so you can help with pick-ups (and let us know in advance if you can). If you are coming and want to help with a support role and could drive a minibus please get in touch.

Media Support

Each group should have a media person or task group to work on getting local and specialist media coverage. If possible have someone back home co-ordinating and making the contacts with local media a week before, then a few days before and on the day after having gotten an account of the action, including photos from your media person at Faslane. Media people should find out deadlines and try to arrange radio interviews before, on the day or upon return. It's also possible to get regional TV stations to cover your group by letting them know in advance. People may want to write their own story, e.g. "Why I am going to risk arrest in Scotland", and submit to local paper, with their media person making contact and promoting coverage.

The media person can already have the bones of a press release prepared ahead of time with quotes from members of the action group, and their details. This can incorporate brief biographical information indicating age, standing in the community (such as professional position or any membership in community organizations) which will appeal to local journalists' need for an angle.

There will be limited facilities for uploading photos, use of media laptop for writing press releases and wireless access on the Faslane 365 Bus at Faslane Peace Camp. Try and bring your own wireless enabled laptop with a charged battery and card reader. Try to have the draft press release already composed ahead of time, with a few blanks to be filled in as indicated above. This can then be emailed out with a few good photos to your media person at home who can then send on to media outlets. Alternatively be prepared with email addresses and phone numbers of local media, send out press release and call from your charged mobile from Faslane (Vodafone works here) on the day.

The Faslane 365 Steering Group will coordinate, as far as possible, national media coverage, connecting reporters with a diversity of people from the groups. Please indicate on your registration form if you are willing to speak to press, especially if you have experience and a penchant for doing so. If you need help with any of this or have questions the F365 media team will try to help — contact Brian (brian@faslane365.org or 07768 312676) or Adam on (adam@faslane365.org)

For more details on dealing with media including sample press releases see the “Getting your message out” section of the Faslane 365 Resource Pack

Welfare

People not risking arrest can also take care of practical support for people who have been arrested such as looking after their belongings. Your group might have someone who keeps up your morale by providing water or hot drinks, chocolate, massages, and encouragement. Remember that other supporters need looking after too!

Through affinity groups, large numbers of people at the blockade can make fast decisions if circumstances change. In your affinity group you can decide very quickly whether to move from one gate if it looks as if the police are re-opening another gate. Work out in advance who will facilitate a quick consensus decision if it is needed.

Volunteers Needed

We also need volunteers to help as first aiders, cooks, legal observers, drivers, sitters in police offices waiting to greet folk as they're released, etc. If you can blockade, please do but if you're coming and want to help with a support role (and aren't needed to do so in your affinity group) then please get in touch.
